NEWS of the WEEK

Laughlin Gets Feather-Shower
Detroit, Mich.—Breaking into an office by Father Charles E. Laughlin, Woody Hockaday, an itinerant Kansan who likes to throw chicken feathers over objects of his disapproval, treated the "Radio Priest" to a feather-shower. The speaker soundly thrashed his interrupter before turning him over to the police, who in turn delivered Hockaday to the care of his wife.

Business Gains
New York City—The first thirty corporations to report their third-quarter earnings showed net profits 50% in excess of the same period last year.

Second College Donation
London, England—The gift of $250,000 to Oxford University for the establishment of a post-graduate medical school by Baron Nuffield is the largest sum ever made by one man to a British university.

GOULD PLAYS AT SOUTH PARIS
This week the Gould Academy football team travels to South Paris to engage their great rivals on the gridiron. Last year Gould was the only team not defeated by the Paris eleven, as they held the favored undefeated team to a scoreless tie. Both teams have had easy victories over Bridgton, while South Paris defeated Norway 6-0 and Gould tied them 6-6. On paper the teams seem to be quite evenly matched with South Paris having the edge. The game should be a thriller and Bethel fans are expected to flock to the neighboring village to witness the battle on Saturday at 2 o'clock.

REV. ELEANOR B. FORBES
35 YEARS A MINISTER
The 35th anniversary of the ordination into the Christian Ministry of Rev. Eleanor Blecknell Forbes was observed at the Universalist Church, West Paris, Sunday morning. Few special invitations were sent out but the large audience filled the church to its capacity. She spoke the esteem of many long-time friends and parishioners of past years. The towns represented were Portland, Lewiston, Auburn, Yarmouth, Pownall, New Gloucester, Gray, Webster, Mechanic Falls, Oxford, Norway, South Paris, West Sumner, Duckfield, Canton, Bryant Pond, Bethel, and Amesbury, Mass.

Miss Forbes has had only three pastorates during the years and is now on her 15th year at West Paris. Not only maintaining the work of the church but attending many weddings and funerals during the past year she has attended over 30 funerals and been unable to answer other calls.

The gathering was an invitation to all who attended The West Paris Band played several selections and the church chorus choir sang appropriate music. Miss Forbes sang a solo. The choir of New Gloucester, who have a beautiful voice sang a solo. The choir of New Gloucester, who have a beautiful voice sang a solo. HOWE PENLEY
The following newspaper account will interest our readers. Mrs. Howe being a former Bethel woman:

Miss Ellen P. Penley and William Howe, prominent residents of West Medway, Mass., were united in marriage at a ceremony performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bradbury, Pembroke, Sunday, Oct. 4 at one o'clock. Rev. Adam Z. Arnold, pastor of the First Baptist Church officiated and the single song service was used. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury. The bride was dressed in blue crepe and lace and wore a carriage. Clarence Noyes of Lakeport played the wedding march and Mrs. Beale Noyes sang. The room was decorated with flowers. Witnesses were Miss A. Madin of West Medway and John T. Bradbury. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served. Mr. Howe is a retired naval officer. Among those present were Mrs. Howe Noyes and Miss Madin. Mrs. John C. Bradbury and Mrs. M. E. Bradbury. Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bradbury. Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bradbury.

MAINE VOTERS FAVOR ANTI-DIVERSION BILL BY 129,422 MAJORITY

The official tabulation of votes cast at the September 14 election recently canvassed and determined by the Governor and Council indicates that the people of Maine voted in favor of the bill to prevent diversion of highway funds by the substantial majority of 129,422.

The anti-diversion bill was the fifth referendum question on the ballot and, the tabulation shows, received 132,012 "yes" votes to 2,590 "no"—a majority of approximately 3 1/2 to 1. The bill takes effect thirty days after the Governor makes public proclamation of the results of the vote which he is required by law to do on or before October 27.

The results by counties follows:

County	YES	NO
Androscoggin	16,581	3,889

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Berry announce the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Charles Freeman. Miss Berry was born in West Bethel, attended the local schools and graduated from Gould Academy last June. She is employed at the Pine Tree Restaurant.

Mrs. Freeman is a native of Portland and a graduate of Gould Academy in 1929. He is employed at the H. F. Thurston & Son mill.

GIRL SCOUTS CAMPING TRIP

The Silver Star Girl Scout Troop now numbers 33. Fifteen girls and three leaders enjoyed an overnight camping trip to Boyker's Camp last week and the Troop wishes to express its appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Boyker for their kindness in giving the use of their camp. The next meeting to be held Friday, Oct. 23 will be devoted to handicraft, at which time members of the Troop Committee will assist in instructing the Scouts in several handicraft projects.

NOTICE

There will be a public meeting in the Fire Hall at South Paris on Wednesday, October 29, at 10:00 o'clock to plan the Oxford County Agricultural Conservation Program for 1937.

FREE MOTION PICTURES NEXT MONDAY EVENING

On Monday evening at 8 o'clock, G. A. Harrison of Portland, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, will give a talk at the I. O. O. F. dining room. This will be followed by an hour or more of motion pictures of the Canadian Rockies and Alaska.

The people of this locality should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this speaker. This community and the railroad have many interests in common, and Mr. Harrison is well acquainted with the local situation. The program is presented without charge and all interested are urged to attend.

LEGION COUNCIL MET TUESDAY EVENING

The Oxford County Council of the American Legion met with the Jackson Silver Post at Locke Mills Tuesday evening. James Boyle, the State Adjutant, spoke. An oyster stew supper was served. Those attending from Bethel were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lurvey, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bennett, Mrs. Jennie Currier, Carrie French, Lillian Young, Marguerite Spinary. The Council meets with the Geo. A. Mundt Post, November 11.

FARMINGTON FINAL FOE

On Wednesday, Oct. 22nd, Bethel fans will see the local eleven in their final engagement of the 1936 season. The team has passed the expectations of both fans and the coaches thus far in the season. On Wednesday they will stack up against one of the best teams of the class in the State. The boys are eager to show what they can do against the team which drubbed them 19 to 0 last year.

QUIMBY HALL WEDDING ANNOUNCED MONDAY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall was the scene of a very pleasant occasion on Monday, Oct. 19 when a few friends of their daughter, Wilma, were entertained at an informal luncheon.

It had been suggested by several of the guests that an engagement announcement might be forthcoming. But they were entirely unperturbed by the wedding announcement which they received stating that Miss Wilma Hall and Charles Quimby were united in marriage on Sunday, July 12.

After breakfast, congratulations had been extended. Mrs. Quimby a delectable luncheon of sandwiches, cake and coffee was enjoyed. The cutting of the wedding cake added to the festivity.

Mr. Quimby arrived home from business in time to receive a shower of confetti and the felicitations of all.

Those present were the Misses Hama Warren, Sylvia Merrill, Linda Van Catherine Lyon, Katherine Daley, Harold Merrill, Marguerite Hall, Eleanor and Mildred Vail, Mrs. Clarence Hall, Mrs. Dorothy Tucker and the guest of honor and husband.

FINAL STRAW VOTE RETURNS INDICATE LANDON FAVORITE

Small Town Poll of 40 States Shows Republican Lead of About 5-3—378 Electoral Votes For Landon

John Thomas Wilson voters, one million, thirty-nine thousand, six hundred and thirty-five of them, residing in small towns and rural America, have registered a straw vote preference for President with this result:

A majority of them, 57.1% favor Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the Republican party candidate. The second choice is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate, with 36.8% of the vote. Congressman Wm. Lemke, Union party, is a distant third with 4.6%; the other three candidates trailing far in the race in the order named. Thomas, Socialist; Browder, Communist; and Colvin, Prohibitionist, last.

In political terms more readily understood Landon with 534,182 votes leads Roosevelt with 352,412 votes on the ratio of about 5 to 3. In 40 states Landon leads in 27 states to 13 states for Roosevelt. In the total terms of electoral votes Landon has 378 to 110 for Roosevelt. In these 40 states on the basis of the small town and country vote only as recorded at the close of this poll. Here's a table of the final total vote for all candidates:

Candidate	Vote
Landon	534,182
Roosevelt	352,412
Lemke	46,548
Thomas	7,544
Colvin	3,584
Browder	4,638

1,029,633 100%

As between the three leading candidates:

Candidate	Vote
Landon	534,182
Roosevelt	352,412
Lemke	46,548

1,029,633 100%

As between Landon and Roosevelt only:

Candidate	Vote
Landon	534,182
Roosevelt	352,412

886,594 100%

The above statistics are the final results in a nation-wide President straw vote conducted by some 100,000 voters in small towns and rural America. It is hoped that a representative group of consultants including those interested in the election will be present.

These results are of an indication to show active interest in the election and national advantage are shown or supported by those of other towns which are receiving requests for straw vote returns.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Servant Wins Big Prize

New York City—Starting with a 16-cent pad of paper, Sally Halmi, a domestic servant, won $1,100 for her first novel "Katrina." She is a native of Finland and worked on her book during odd hours for a year and a half. She is now a guest at the Park Avenue home of a former employer.

Consensus of Straw Votes

New York City—A slight change was noted in the unofficial and neutral summary of various straw polls throughout the country. This week's figures, from widely scattered sources, give this alignment of the Electoral College:

	Certain	Likely	Total
Roosevelt	241	116	357
London	74	124	198

Necessary to Elect 269

European War Scares

London, England—With Lloyds, premier insurance organization of the world refusing to write further risks against damage by air-raids, Great Britain is sharing the fears of all Europe over another war. Announcing two new 35,000-ton battleships, to cost $40,000,000 each, Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared "Most of the world seems to have gone mad." Gas-proof vaults are being built in new office buildings.

Republicans Demand Re-Broadcast

Chicago, Ill.—Because the Columbia Broadcasting System shut off phonographic records of President Roosevelt's voice during a political speech by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, the Republican National Committee has demanded a re-broadcast of the address as originally prepared. The broadcasters refuse to use phonograph records on the air and have refunded the charge for the Vandenberg time on the air.

Early Morning Mass

New York City—To accommodate night-club entertainers, church girls, waiters and other workers, Cardinal Hayes has authorized Father Edward P. Luce, rector of St. Malachy's Church, to hold a special Sunday mass at 6 o'clock in the morning.

Capital Briefs

Washington, D. C.—Of 3,512 veterans eligible for the bonus, but 120,000 have applied for bonus totaling $1,775,000,000. Scuttled old warships has reduced the navy's naval strength since July 1 from 324 ships of 1,080,715 tons to 306 ships of 1,062,875 tons. American cotton crop for 1935-36 estimated at 18,000,000 bales, 11% lower than the ten year average of 20,437,000 bales and the smallest pick since 1924-25.

Mountainous Performers

New York City—The sports world this winter will see two of the biggest men ever to enter sports ring. Leon Ketchell, a big sleeper, weighs 280 pounds and when he sleeps he lays his 7 feet 3 inch sideways across two double beds. In the wrestling class is Max ("Mass-of-Muscle") Levy, whose feet 1 inch manages to tip the scales at 615 pounds.

U. S. Steel's Southern Expansion—Birmingham, Ala.—Declaring he believed the depression over, Mr. C. Taylor, Chairman of the Board of the U. S. Steel Corporation, announced that his company would spend $29,000,000 in expanding its Southern subsidiary, the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company. The new mills will add 2,500 workers to the 17,000 already employed.

Mail Order Houses Prosper—Chicago, Ill.—Both of the country's leading mail-order houses reported all records broken for September business. Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported $50,388,115 in sales, a gain of 32% over last year.

Paper Out of Pine—Savannah, Ga.—The paper two years ago that never could be made from pine was added to the value of Southern forests. The new industry has received fresh impetus from the development of a process by Charles H. Herty for recovering even fatty acids from the waste which not only opens the way for the manufacture of fine writing papers but produces a source of material for paint manufacturers.

Condition of the Treasury—(For Last Fiscal Year) Receipts $2,000,000,000 Expenditures $2,000,000,000 Balance $2,000,000,000 Deficit, fiscal year $2,000,000,000 Public Debt $2,000,000,000

NEW TRAIN-FERRY ROBS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL OF ITS HORRORS TO TOURISTS

At a cost of $5,000,000 in steamship and terminal construction, British and French railroads have perfected a through service enabling London-Paris travelers to make the trip without change of trains. Powerful cross-channel ferries have a capacity of twelve railroad cars, which are run directly upon the steamers at Dunkirk and Folkestone. Heretofore a 25-foot tidal range made loading and unloading hazardous, but is now controlled by locks similar to those used on canals.

CHAPTER XII

"SYLVIA!" he exclaimed, springing up and advancing toward her with outstretched hand. "Sylvia! What a brick you are to come!"

Angry as she was, when face to face with him she could not resist the contagion of his smile.

"I'm glad to see you so well," she said. "This is Mr. Horatio Fuller of Allon City."

Horatio looked Heath up and down and then stepped forward and gripped his hand with unmistakable cordiality.

"Nice to know you, Mr.," was his greeting. "You seem to have got yourself into a jam. If there is anything I can do—any way I can be of service—"

"Horatio, you forget we are not here to make a social call," interrupted Sylvia, who had by this time regained her wonted chilliness and indignation. "On the contrary, Mr.

"It Was Outrageous of You, Insulting to Leave a Thing of This Sort for Marcia."

Heath, we have come on a very painful errand. We are returning this clock to you."

She extended it toward him, glancing at her fingers as if it were too hot a thing to touch. "It was outrageous of you, insulting, to leave a thing of this sort for Marcia—in attempt to pay to each kindness such as here."

"I'm sorry," Heath stammered. "But you couldn't have been very sorry, or you would have ceased such an act would hurt her terribly."

Horatio Fuller frowned nervously at his lie.

"You deserve," swept on young Sylvia with rising spirit, "to be thrashed. Horatio and I both think so—don't we, Horatio?"

"Yes, I say, Sylvia, go easy!" he protested. "Don't drag me into this. I don't know one thing about it. Suppose I just step inside and listen to the news while you and Mr. Heath discuss your business. It will be true about all around. If you want me you can speak."

"Come Mr. Fuller, a man of my feeling. Sherry Heath deserves looking after him. I congratulate you."

"Thank you," said Sylvia.

"Everything is settled then?"

She nodded.

"I hope you will be very happy."

She did not reply at once. When she did, it was to say with a humility new and appealing:

"I shall be. I never appreciated Horatio until now. I was too silly, vain—feather-headed. I have realized it since knowing Marcia."

"We all want to be different after we have seen Marcia," Stanley Heath said gently.

The girl searched his face.

"I cannot understand you, Mr. Heath," she said. "What has Marcia done that you should have left her as you did? Hasn't she believed in you through thick and thin? Stand up for you against everybody—going it blind at that? Few women would have had such faith in a stranger."

"I realize that. You do not need to tell me," he answered. "It is precisely because she has gone so far I believed her capable of going farther yet—the whole way."

"What do you mean by the whole way?"

"To the end."

"Well, hasn't she?"

"No. She has fallen short—disappointed me cruelly. When it came to the final test, her affection collapsed. Oh, she has been wonderful," he added quickly. "Do not think I fail to appreciate that. She has far out-distanced every woman I ever have known. I simply expected too much of her, doubtless the impossible. Human nature is frail—a woman's heart the frailest thing of all. I have always said so."

"You wrong Marcia," cried Sylvia hotly. "Her heart is not frail. Neither is she the weak sort of person you have pictured. In all the world you could not match her loyalty or the depth of her affection. If after the experience we three have lived through together you have not discovered what she is, it is futile for me to attempt to show you."

"You came into our lives like a meteor—entirely detached from everything. We knew nothing about you and in the face of damaging evidence you offered neither Marcia nor me one word of explanation. Marcia asked none. Without rhyme or reason she believed in you. I had not her faith. I freely confess I thought you guilty. Oh, I liked you sufficiently well to be ready to help you save your skin. But Marcia cared enough for you to want you to save your soul."

"When you were taken ill, we both nursed you—I willingly, she derotely. Here lay another difference had you been able to detect it. What happened as a result of this enforced intimacy? You know—know far better than I."

"I fell in love with Marcia," replied the man without an instant's hesitation.

"You fell in love!" Sylvia repeated, her lip curling. "You call it love—the poor thing you offered her! Why, Marcia would have gone to the world's end with you, Stanley Heath, had she the right. She would have faced any humiliation for your sake. If prison doors closed upon you, she would have remained faithful until they swung open and afterward followed you to any corner of the earth in which you chose to begin a new life."

"That's where you're wrong, Sylvia," contradicted Heath. "Marcia was not ready to do that. I tried her out and she refused. When I told her I should return to her, and asked her in so many words whether she was willing to face shame and public scorn for my sake she turned her back on me. She could not go to that length."

"Are you so sure understood?" asked Sylvia, stepping nearer and looking fearfully into his eyes. "There is a shame Marcia never to this world would face for any man, but it is not the shame you have just described."

It is the shame of wearing an outer garment, destroying a home in the village where we have been brought up, we believe in marriage as a sacred, enduring sacrament—not a bond to be lightly broken. When you offered Marcia less than that."

"I never offered Marcia any such shameful passion," Sylvia cried. "Stanley Heath, I would not so far."

"But you are married."

"What is a lie. Who told you so?"

"Yes, the telephone message. I heard it last night."

"But, Sylvia, Mrs. Stanley Heath is not my wife. She is my young step-mother, my father's widow. I always have called her Joan."

"Oh! I beg your pardon."

"I see it all now," the man explained. "You have entirely misunderstood the situation. I'm a Junior. Since my father's death, however, people have got out of the way of using the term. Sometimes I myself am careless about it. So Marcia thought—"

"Of course she did. We both did. How were we to know?" Sylvia demanded.

"How, indeed? If an innocent citizen cannot visit a town without being arrested as a criminal within a week of his arrival, why shouldn't he be married without his knowledge? Circumstantial evidence was, apparently, work wonders."

Then suddenly he threw back his head and laughed.

"Bless you, little Sylvia—bless you for setting me right. I told you you were a brick and you've proved it. Thanks to you, everything is now straightened out. Here, give me your hand. How am I to thank you for what you have done? I only hope that young Horatio Fuller of yours realizes what a treasure he is getting."

"He does, Mr. Heath—he does," observed that gentleman, strolling at the same instant through the door and encircling his tiny bride-to-be with his arm. "Haven't I traveled half way across this big country of ours to marry her?"

"Oh, we're not going to be married yet, Horatio," demurred the girl trying to wrench herself free of the big fellow's hold.

"Certainly we are, my dear. Didn't I tell you this morning I came to get married? I was perfectly serious. Dad gave me two months' vacation with that understanding. I must either produce a wife when I get home or lose my job."

"Looks to me as if you had Mr. Fuller's future prosperity in your hands, Sylvia," Heath said.

"I'm not doing any worrying," smiled Horatio. "—"

The sentence was cut short by the radio's loudspeaker:

"The much sought Long Island gem thief was captured this morning at his lodgings in Jersey City. Harris Chalmers, alias Jimmie O'Hara, a paroled prisoner, was taken by the police at his room on K—street. A quantity of loot, together with firearms and the missing jewels were found concealed in the apartment. The man readily admitted the theft. He has a long prison record."

For a second nobody spoke.

Then as if prompted by common impulse, the three on the piazza rushed indoors.

Elisha was sitting limply before the radio.

"Did you hear that?" he gasped.

"Well, rather!" Horatio Fuller shouted with a triumphant wave of his hand.

"Ain't it the best news?" exploded the astonished sheriff. "That sends the whole case up in the air. All that's needed now to make me out the darndest fool on God's earth is for Eleazar's young nephew lawyer in New York, who's checking up there in O. K. If he does, I'll go bury my head. There goes the telephone. That's him! That's Eleazar—I'll bet a hat."

"Hello—Yes, I heard it—You ain't surprised? Wal, I am. I'm took off my feet—Oh, your nephew wired, did he, an' everything's O. K. That bein' the case, I reckon there's no more to be said. I feel like a shrimp. How do you feel?"

Elisha hung up the receiver.

"Wal, Mr. Heath, the story you told Eleazar an' me is straight as a string in every particular," he announced. "You're free! There ain't nothin' I can say. To tell you I'm sorry ain't in no way adequate. You'll just have to set me down as one of these puddin'-headed idiots that was over-ambitious to do his duty."

"I shall not let it go at that, Mr. Winlow," Stanley Heath exclaimed, stepping to the old man's side and seizing his palm in a strong grip. "We all make errors. Forget it. I'm going to bed. Besides, you have treated me like a prince since I've been your guest."

"What I can't understand, Mr. Winlow, is why you didn't recognize me as a thoroughbred from the beginning." Horatio Fuller remarked.

"You're a right to berate me, young man—a perfect right. I ain't goin' to put up no defense. 'Twas the circumstances that blinded me. Besides, I had only a single glimpse of Mr. Heath. Remember that. After he was took sick I never saw him again. Had we got acquainted, as we have now, everything would 'a' been different. Findin' them jewels—"

"Great hat, man! I had a diamond ring in my pocket when I came to Wilton, but that didn't prove I'd stolen it."

"I know! I know!" acquiesced the sheriff. "Eleazar an' me lost our bearings entirely. We got completely turned around."

"A thief with a Phi Beta Kappa key!" jeered Horatio. "Godfrey!" Then turning to Sylvia, he added in an undertone: "Well, so far as I can see the only person who has kept her head through this affair is our Aunt Marcia."

"Whose head-piece?" inquired Stanley Heath, puzzled by the term.

"Well, you'll not have the opportunity to call her that much longer," Heath laughed.

"You don't tell me!" Elisha regarded him, open-mouthed. "Humph!"

So that's how the wind blows, is it? Wal, I can see this mix-up would 'a' ended my chances any way. Marcia'd never have me after this. Disappointed as I am, though, there's a sight of comfort in knowin' she won't have Eleazar neither. He don't come out of the shindy a whit better'n me. That's some-thing. In fact it's a heap!"

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED FARISS

If any one has been afraid that there has been too little going on in the Parish lately, they will not have to worry about this coming week. You might very well start this week. On Thursday night there is a Harvest Supper at East Stoneham. Another Harvest Supper at Center Lovell on Friday evening. You will be glad you went to these suppers when you arise from the table with that "well filled" feeling. Perhaps you will be wanting to go to the Center Lovell supper also to note the improvements in the vestry. We are rather eager to have a look at it, to see how fine it is after painters have finished with their good work. Well, if these suppers are anything like the supper they gave us at Albany a week ago, you will want to be there. Also while talking about suppers you will be wanting to remember that next week Tuesday there will be a supper at North Waterford. Also on Thursday night at Albany—and if you go away hungry from these suppers it will be your own fault. Suppers are not the whole story. One very important feature of the United Parish activity begins this week. On Thursday of this week, and on Tuesday of next week, we will have sessions of our Parish Training School. No, we cannot say our Parish Training School, for we hope that Norway and South Paris are going to join with us. Rev. Harry Titus, of the Maine Council of Religious Education is going to teach a course for the teachers of the Sunday school; and the local ministers will have a course of more general interest considering different phases of the activities of the Church. We hope the attendance at these sessions may be large. The other sessions of the School will be held November 3, 11, and 18.

The Union Association meets next Wednesday at Fryeburg. Many from the Parish will be going to that meeting. Rev. Samuel W. Keck, State Supt. from South Dakota is among the speakers and he will speak in the afternoon and evening. These Association Meetings merit our effort to be present. They are high times of inspiration and fellowship.

The Young People will be busy also part of this week. On Friday evening the High School Class of the Waterford Sunday School is to have a social at the Wilkins House. That same evening there is a Family Social at Center Lovell. Sunday afternoon the Junior Chorus of the Parish are going to attend the Junior Choir Festival at Portland. Next week Friday, there will be a Halloween Social at East Stoneham.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 25.
The Golden Text is: "The righteous also shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger" (Job 17:9).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all. The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate" (Psalms 34: 19, 22).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:
"Universal salvation rests on progression, rule, and demonstration of man's being are not in the least understood before what is termed death overtakes mortals; they will rise no higher spiritually in the scale of existence on account of that single experience, but will remain as material as before the transition, still seeking happiness through a material, instead of through a spiritual sense of life, and from selfish and inferior motives" (Pages 201: 12-13, and 290: 3-10).

THE MAINE MEETING PLACE

The Maine Development Commission, which, in the past, has concerned itself mainly with the recreational development of the state, is about to embark—in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture—on an ambitious program to popularize Maine farm products throughout the country.

Eventually, it is hoped, the Commission will be able to show the same brand of success in this undertaking that it has shown in contributing to make Maine one of the leading recreational regions of the universe.

Before we go into this new agricultural phase of the Commission's activities, perhaps it will prove of general interest to give a brief "outline of history" of the organization: its aims; its ideals and its background.

The Maine Development Commission is the "baby" of state organizations. Formed by the State Legislature in 1927, it has yet to celebrate its tenth birthday.

At the time, a commission of this nature was a new departure in state affairs. Nothing much was known about how it would eventually operate, because nowhere was there a precedent. It was breaking new ground.

Only $25,000 per year was appropriated for the first few years. With this meager amount, the Commission embarked on its duties of "scouting forth and displaying agricultural, industrial, and recreational resources, activities, and attractions of the state."

It was obvious at the time that, with the small amount of money available, it would be impossible to do much more than to concentrate on one of the objectives. Recreation, with its quick, sure returns, was chosen.

Through the ensuing years, the Commission gained a reputation in recreational circles of doing a thorough, business-like job.

Competing with sections spending up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars for advertising and publicity, it managed somehow to keep the state well into the running and contributed greatly to the high regard which holds in the minds of all those who vacation in the summertime.

Convinced that the Commission was doing a heroic job, succeeding Legislatures appropriated larger amounts for its use—$50,000; $75,000; and finally, the last Legislature gave it $100,000 with the proviso that $25,000 would be spent for agricultural advertising.

Co-operating with the Department of Agriculture, the bulk of this latter sum was spent last year in advertising and publicizing Maine agricultural and seafood products in newspapers, on the radio, and at the leading agricultural and food fairs throughout the country. Over 60,000 cook books revealing appetizing ways of preparing Maine foodstuffs were distributed. Housewives and Merchants alike were enthusiastic about the Maine program, more to the point, about Maine products.

At present, the Commission is engaged in an ambitious attempt to have every worthwhile product coming out of the state bear a label that will instantly identify it as a State of Maine product. Merchandising experts are agreed that we can accomplish this ideal, backed with a strong advertising publicity program, that Maine will be eagerly sought all over the country.

Fortunately, we have one of Maine foods are unsurpassed in the world. Our potatoes, corn, beans, apples, dairy products, poultry, and seafoods are so far ahead of any others that there is no comparison. Idaho potatoes? Sure they are good, but if you will take trouble to compare them with Maine variety you will get an idea of the value of an advertising program that has "sold" the people the country on the support that the Idaho apud is superior.

We all know of the success California and other states have met in advertising their foodstuffs. We can do the same in Maine. Means additional millions of dollars in the pockets of our farmers, commercial fishermen, and if it is one knows of more worthy product to hold a little extra cash, let it speak up. All we need to put things over is the wholehearted operation of Maine citizens.

Unfortunately, the idea is not enough advanced to give you a than this sketchy idea of how a program will be operated. As it develops, however, you will be informed through this column.
